Masked Gunmen Seize Crimean Investigative Journalism Center

By: DAVID E. KAPLAN | March 2, 2014

As Russian troops streamed into Crimea, Ukraine, yesterday, masked gunmen broke into and seized the office of the Crimean Center for Investigative Journalism in the region's capital, Simferopol. The group of about 30 men, dressed in military fatigues, targeted offices housing the Information and Press Center, a hub for independent media in the region, and the Crimean investigative center.

After breaking a window and forcing their way through the front door, militia leader Konstantin Knyrik announced that the offices would now house representatives of "The Crimean Front," because from "this building does not come true

Web evidence points to pro-Russia rebels in downing of MH17 (+video)

There are strong, though not conclusive, indications that pro-Russian separatist rebels fired the missile that downed Malaysian Airlines Flight MH17 today.

Abstract:

We document a serious problem of reference rot: more than 70% of the URLs within the Harvard Law Review and other journals, and 50% of the URLs found within United States Supreme Court opinions, do not link to the originally cited information.

Given that, we propose a solution for authors and editors of new scholarship that involves libraries undertaking the distributed, long-term preservation of link contents.

§170. American Television and Radio Archives

(a) Establishment and maintenance in Library of Congress; purpose; determination of composition, cataloging, indexing and availability by Librarian

The Librarian of Congress (hereinafter referred to as the "Librarian") shall establish and maintain in the Library of Congress a library to be known as the American Television and Radio Archives (hereinafter referred to as the "Archives"). The purpose of the Archives shall be to preserve a permanent record of the television and radio programs which are the heritage of the people of the United States and to provide access to such programs to historians and scholars without encouraging or causing copyright infringement.

(1) The Librarian, after consultation with interested organizations and individuals, shall determine and place in the Archives such copies and phonorecords of television and radio programs transmitted to the public in the United States and in other countries which are of present or potential public or cultural interest, historical significance, cognitive value, or otherwise worthy of preservation, including copies and phonorecords of published and unpublished transmission programs-

- (A) acquired in accordance with sections 407 and 408 of title 17; and
- (B) transferred from the existing collections of the Library of Congress; and
- (C) given to or exchanged with the Archives by other libraries, archives, organizations, and individuals; and
- (D) purchased from the owner thereof.

(2) The Librarian shall maintain and publish appropriate catalogs and indexes of the collections of the Archives, and shall make such collections available for study and research under the conditions prescribed under this section.

(b) Reproduction, compilation, and distribution for research of regularly scheduled newscasts or on-the-spot coverage of news events by Librarian; promulgation of regulations

Notwithstanding the provisions of section 106 of title 17, the Librarian is authorized with respect to a transmission program which consists of a regularly scheduled newscast or on-the-spot coverage of news events and, under standards and conditions that the Librarian shall prescribe by regulation-

- (1) to reproduce a fixation of such a program, in the same or another tangible form, for the purposes of preservation or security or for distribution under the conditions of clause (3) of this subsection; and
- (2) to compile, without abridgment or any other editing, portions of such fixations according to subject matter, and to reproduce such compilations for the purpose of clause (1) of this subsection; and
- (3) to distribute a reproduction made under clause (1) or (2) of this subsection-
  - (A) by loan to a person engaged in research; and

The Librarian of Congress (hereinafter referred to as the "Librarian") shall establish and maintain in the Library of Congress a library to be known as the American Television and Radio Archives (hereinafter referred to as the "Archives"). The purpose of the Archives shall be to preserve a permanent record of the television and radio programs which are the heritage of the people of the United States and to provide access to such programs to historians and scholars without encouraging or causing copyright infringement

4 Things That Were Supposed To Happen By 2015 Because Obama Was Reelected

BY JUDG LEGUM POSTED ON JANUARY 1, 2015 AT 9:43 AM UPDATED JANUARY 1, 2015 AT 1:02 PM

1. Gas was supposed to cost $5.45 per gallon.

In March 2012, on the floor of the United States Senate, Mike Lee (R-UT) predicted that if Obama was reelected gas would cost $5.45 per gallon by the start 2015. Lee said that gas prices would rise 5 cents for every month Obama was in office, ultimately reaching $6.60 per gallon.

Lee was not alone. Newt Gingrich, running for the GOP nomination, predicted that if Obama was reelected he would push gas to "$10 a gallon." Gingrich said he would reduce gas prices dramatically by reversing Obama's energy policies. Gingrich flanked himself with campaign signs promising $2.50 gas if he was elected.

(BAIER) Gentlemen, we know how much you love hand-raising questions. So we promise, this is the only one tonight: the only one. Is there anyone on stage, and can I see hands, who is unwilling tonight to pledge your support to the eventual nominee of the Republican party and pledge to not run an independent campaign against that person.

(BAIER) Again, were looking for you to raise your hand now -- raise your hand now if you wont make that pledge tonight. Mr. Trump.

(BAIER) Mr. Trump to be clear, youre standing on a Republican primary debate stage.

(TRUMP) I fully understand.

(BAIER) The place where the RNC will give the nominee the nod.

(TRUMP) I fully understand.

(BAIER) And that experts say an independent run would almost certainly hand the race over to Democrats and likely another Clinton. You cant say tonight that you can make that pledge?

(TRUMP) I cannot say. I have to respect the person that if its not me, the person that wins if I do win.

(CHRISTIE) And you know -- you know, Senator Paul? Senator Paul, you know, the hugs that I remember are the hugs that I gave to the families who lost their people on September 11th.

(CHRISTIE) Those are the hugs I remember, and those had nothing to do -- and those had nothing to do with politics,

(CHRISTIE) unlike what youre doing by cutting speeches on the floor of the Senate, then putting them on the Internet within half an hour to raise money for your campaign...

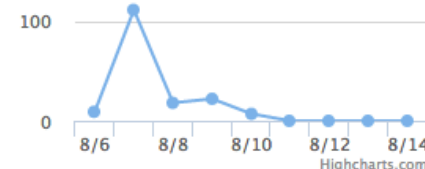

(KELLY) alright

(PAUL & CHRISTIE) ...and while still putting our country at risk.

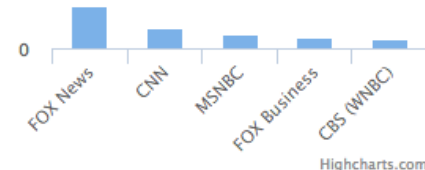

(KELLY) Alright, weve gotta cut it off there. We have plenty more we want to get to. That was an interesting exchange, thank you for that.

(KELLY) Well, I want to move on, because I have -- were gonna get to you, governor, but I -- I really wanna get to a Facebook questioner. His name is Alex Chalgren, and he has the following question:

Who's Really Winning the Media Wars in the 2016 Campaign?

Posted on September 2, 2015 by Kalev Leetaru

When it comes to media coverage, it seems as if Donald Trump is “trumping” all his rivals, Republicans and Democrats alike. But is that true? And how does it vary by print, digital and television media? Using the Internet Archive’s Television Archive and the GDELT Project, researcher Kalev Leetaru is able to analyze daily data to see who is winning the media wars of 2016. Today we are excited to announce three new visualizations that explore American politics through the lens of television: a live campaign tracker hosted by The Atlantic that offers a running tally of all mentions of the 2016 presidential candidates across national television monitored by the Archive, and two visualizations that show which statements from the first Republican debate went viral on television. Finally, an analysis published in The Guardian shows just how unique television coverage of the
